

YOUTH DAY CELEBRATION

The Dihlabeng Local Municipality employees celebrated youth day by wearing school uniforms on the 15th June 2016. Youth day is popularly known as the Soweto Uprising or June 16. The uprisings tragically ended with hundreds of young people killed by the apartheid government when they protested against the imposition of Afrikaans as a medium of instruction. Youth Day commemorates the Soweto youth uprising on 16 June 1976. The day is celebrated in order to recognise the role of youth in the liberation of South Africa from the Apartheid regime. 2016 marks the 40th anniversary of the June 16 Soweto and other related uprisings. This year National Youth Day and Youth Month is celebrated under the theme: “Youth Moving South Africa Forward”. The theme is a call for action by a broad range of social partners who, in tandem with government, are moving South Africa forward. It also recognises the role that the youth of South Africa have played and are still playing in moving the country forward. Education is a crucial factor in combating poverty and inequality in society. The right to education is not only the right to access education but also the right to receive a good quality of education. Education is available and accessible but also acceptable and adaptable. It offers all learners with capabilities they require to become economically productive, develop sustainable livelihoods, contribute to peaceful and democratic societies and enhance individual well-being.

The Dihlabeng Local Municipality is fighting poverty by encouraging its youth to pursue education by offering bursaries to students needing financial aid to gain great qualifications and become a productive member of society, municipal bursaries are and have been offered in a wide variety of fields. The aim is to assist students to reach their goals and provide the areas within Dihlabeng with a stable workforce in various fields. The municipality has internship and Graduate Development Program for students who completed their studies and in need of work experience, develop skills, personal development, learn about a field and assess their interest and abilities. Dihlabeng also provides learnerships to unemployed youth through Local Government Sector and Training Authority or SETA’s. The municipality has and continues to support learners with school uniform and school girls with sanitary pads.

DIHLABENG LOCAL MUNICIPALITY ENDEAVOURS IMPROVING ITS EMPLOYEE'S KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS SET.

There is a saying that goes like this “Wat jy saai sal jy maai”. The Dhlabeng Local Municipality implemented Policy a Municipal Finance Management Act 56 of 2003, Skills Development Act 97 of 1998. The bursary Policy is intended to assist the Municipality in securing adequately qualified personnel for its service by providing financial assistance to employees to enable them to qualify themselves educationally for the Municipality’s service and to enhance their level of competence to perform the duties assigned to them. The bursary will apply for full time study or any training undertaken in terms of the Municipality’s training policy. The objectives of the bursary is to encourage career development of employees through further education. To encourage self-development activities provided that they are along the lines regarded as beneficial to the municipality by management. To provide financial assistance to employees who wish to improve themselves through formal courses of study.

Here is some of the employees that, used the bursary and made a big success out of it:

Neria Mokoena, a General Worker, is one of the most outstanding bursary holders, she passed all her first year modules. Neria Mokoena is a B.Com Accounting student. She did all this without having any computer access and still going to work.

Boitumelo Lerata, also a general worker from Paul Roux, he passed his post-graduate with cum laude, and graduated early this year. Boitumelo was an IT student.

Martha Keneiloe Mothibeli had already obtained her degree, but she decided to further her studies, she passed her masters.

Jabulani Titus Sibisi, he started working at the municipality with no matric, but he felt the need to better his education, Mr Titus completed his matric at the age of 50 and he passed with exemption. He didn’t stop there, he also completed a diploma in Municipal Governance, an Advance National Cert. in Program Development for Local Municipalities. Currently Mr Sibisi is busy with a bridging course, to complete his B - Tech.

DLM in partnership with LGSETA, started Fire and Rescue learnership in 2013. The learnership was for a period of 12 months. It started with 10 general workers and 5 unemployed people, at the end of the learnership, the results came back positive, all the learners passed and was observed as fire fighters.

HOW TO ASK YOUR EMPLOYER TO HELP YOU FUND YOUR EDUCATION

Do you often wish you could afford to further your studies? Life comes with huge financial responsibilities, and we know that, like many of our students, you might struggle to pay for your own studies. However, there are other options.

Did you know that you can ask your employer to help you finance your studies?

The first and most important thing to do if you want help from your employer is to do your research. You have to convince your employer of the benefits that the company will receive if you are given the opportunity to study further. Also, being able to explain the return on investment for the employer will help you to sound more convincing. Some of the benefits that you could point out include increased future productivity, as well as the ability to take on new projects and responsibilities.

How to Ask Your Employer to Help You Fund Your Education; steps you need to take.

Think about possible questions concerns that your supervisor or manager might have. By preparing responses to these questions/concerns, and by focusing your responses on the benefits to the employer, you will be more likely to get the response that you are looking for. If, for example, you think that your employer might be worried about the time that you will need to be away from work, you can reassure your employer that you will only need time off to write exams, and that you will study and complete your assignments in your own time at home. Give enough detail to back up your points. Employers like to ensure that their employees have all the necessary skills and knowledge to perform their jobs successfully.

Continue to pg 4

If you truly feel that studying further (in a field that is related to your job) will make you a better employee, then you will be more likely to have the confidence you need to convince your employer. Make sure you are able to give detailed examples of how your employer will benefit by paying for you to study further. Remember that non-verbal communication is highly effective. When you are presenting your points to your employer, make sure you are aware of your facial expressions, the tone and pitch of your voice, your body language, and your levels of eye contact.

Lastly, don't give up.

If your manager feels that the conditions are not conducive at the moment to fund your studies, it is not the end of the world, and you shouldn't feel hopeless — you can either ask again when another opportunity arises, or you can consider other financing options.

MY VOTE IS MY VOICE

President Jacob Zuma has announced that the next Local Government Elections will take place on 3 August 2016.

Municipal elections are held every five years to elect councillors who will be responsible for governing a municipality for the next five years. Municipal councils ensure services that impact the daily lives of citizens in their areas, including water, electricity and sanitation.

“We urge all those who are eligible to vote register to vote so that together we continue to re-affirm and deepen our democracy,” said Zuma.

LIBRARIES COMMEMORATE WORLD BOOK DAY

23 April is a symbolic date for world literature, it is on this date in 1616 that Cervantes, Shakespeare and Inca Garcilaso de la Vega all died. It is also the date of birth or death of other prominent authors, such as Maurice Druon, Haldor K.Laxness, Vladimir Nabokov, Josep Pla and Manuel Mejía Vallejo.

It was a natural choice for UNESCO's General Conference, held in Paris in 1995, to pay a world-wide tribute to books and authors on this date, encouraging everyone, and in particular young people, to discover the pleasure of reading and gain a renewed respect for the irreplaceable contributions of those, who have furthered the social and cultural progress of humanity. In this regard, UNESCO created the World Book and Copyright Day.

The day is has been celebrated ever since by a growing number of partners and since its launch has shown itself to be a great opportunity for reflection and information.

And thus Dihlabeng Local Municipality and the libraries department in particular, has embarked on a operation to enable the youth to re-discover joy of reading books and explore in greater depth a multitude of aspects of the publishing world and invited Impumelelo Public School and the Bakenpark Bewaarskool (a pre-school in Bakenpark) to come and celebrate the day with them at the Bakenpark Community Hall on the 29th of April.

“Books are vectors of values and knowledge, and depositories of the intangible heritage, books should be viewed as windows onto the diversity of cultures and as tools for dialogue, and they’re sources of material wealth and copyright-protected works of creative artists. All of these aspects have been the subject of numerous awareness-raising and promotional initiatives that the Libraries department has realized as having a genuine impact in fostering cultural and social progress in humanity.” said Mr V. Tshabalala Library assistant, Bakenpark library.

Entertainment was offered in the form choir singing and traditional dancing by Impumelelo Public School as well as a couple of items from the Bakenpark Bewaarskool that kept the audience elated.

WELLNESS WEEK 2♥16

CORPORATE WELLNESS WEEK, 1-5 JULY 2016

July 1 - 5 2016 is Corporate Wellness Week in South Africa. It's a week that puts the spotlight on wellness in the workplace and identifies the pitfalls and productivity levels of an 'all work and no play' attitude in the office. If eating your lunch at your desk while furiously trying to type up a document between bites is a regular occurrence for you, then perhaps it's time to break a few bad habits. Experts believe says that changing your routine in a few simple ways can have a hugely beneficial impact on your energy levels at work and your ability to manage stress.

We're all guilty of thinking that we cannot afford to take time out of the day to go for a short walk, enjoy a cup of tea in the office garden or enjoy a lunch break away from our desks, but once you realise how much more creative and productive a refreshed mind is you might think twice about not wanting to leave your work station.

Here are some top tips to squeeze in some exercise at the workplace and let your increased Serotonin levels absorb some of those little stresses that pop up in your day. (Serotonin is primarily found in the gastrointestinal tract, blood platelets, and the central nervous system of animals and humans, it affects the functioning of our cardiovascular system, muscles, and various elements in the endocrine system)

- Taking about 10,000 steps a day (1 hour and 40 minutes) is enough to boost your energy and lower your risk of serious health problems such as heart disease and stroke. Start those 10 000 steps by parking your car further away from the office, taking the stairs instead of the elevator and deliberately using a bathroom on another floor.

- Sit on an exercise ball instead of a chair. This will strengthen your abs and back and you'll work on your posture without even trying.

- Set an alarm to go off every hour to remind you to stand up and move around. Even if you just swing your arms or take a deep breath, you'll feel more alert.

- Use the restroom on another floor and take the stairs.

- Deliver documents or messages to co-workers in person rather than by email or phone.

- Walk to the mall for lunch or park your car on the opposite end of the food court. Get a headset for your phone so you can move around while you talk.

- Does your company encourage workplace wellness? Here are some suggestions you and your colleagues can make:

- Work with local gyms to provide membership discounts for employees

- Organise office-wide yoga, aerobics and cardio workouts

- Encourage staff members to participate in weekend charity walks - this will instil a walking culture in your workplace in no time

- Set up short walks during lunch whenever your deadlines allow for it. Before you know it you'll have a few colleagues joining you for a quick power walking session

If your company has a small garden or outdoor area, set up outdoor meetings and brainstorm sessions and enjoy the benefits of fresh air and sunshine

"Eating a healthy lunch full of the right nutrients goes a long way, and remember that adding short sessions of exercise throughout the day will help you burn more calories and also reduce stress.

We are all trying to achieve a work-life balance, juggling careers with family, friends and hobbies. But how much balance do you strike between the hours of nine to five?

DIHLABENG DOING IT AGAIN FOR THE COMMUNITY

On the 26th June 2016 LED held burial society event in New Hall. Special guests that attended the event, MEC for Social Development, Executive Mayor for Thabo Mofutsanyane District and the event was successful as all the society members rejoiced. During the 2015/2016 budget an amount of R1.5 000 000.00 was budgeted for the distribution of catering equipment to burial societies in Dihlabeng Local Municipality. The existence of burial societies is historical and cultural. Burial Societies were created as a response to the rising cost of providing a dignified funeral for low income workers. The high burial costs made it impossible for individual households to be able to afford all costs associated with funerals, coffins, transport and catering. This project is unique and the first in the country that recognises and assists burial societies. The Burial Societies are an enormous sector of the local economy and contributes the sustainability of the local economy.

In the National Development Plan economic development forms an important part and the distribution of these catering equipment will also have a positive impact on the local SMME's. Nearly every African house is covered by a burial society, burial societies are the second largest form of member based organisation, after church. Research estimates that the membership of burial societies and stokvels contribute between R25 billion and R44 billion to the national economy. The new Co-operatives Act, under the Department of Trade and Industry enables burial societies to formalise as co-op burial societies and run to form their own co-operative insurance enterprise. Therefore the Dihlabeng Local Economic Development encourages all burial societies and stokvels to be formalised and run as a formal enterprise. Women still dominate in this sector, representing more than 61 percent of membership. The majority remains low income workers and elderly who benefit from social grants, although membership composition cuts across the whole African working class, irrespective of their income.
